Help! I Need a Project Manager!: A Handbook of Practical Information and Techniques for Getting Through the "What Do I Do Now" Process with an Elderly or Ailing Parent Kathy Tuten

Handbook with concrete information on how to survive the process of deciding "what to do" with an ailing or elderly parent when managing the parent's health at home becomes so difficult the family decides that other alternatives must be looked at, even when they don't want to. The handbook includes Workspaces for gathering and recording information necessary for qualifying for VA services, Medicaid, and other organizations. It includes Workspaces for note taking while looking at nursing homes, home health services, and adult daycare centers. It also includes lists of pieces of information that it would be wise to have available now before any family even faces such a decision.
